

Domenico Di Giorgio

He graduated with honors in Computer Science from the University of Salerno. He has consolidated experience in development and integration of complex applications either using Microsoft technologies or open source, especially web-based. His activity includes design and implementation of semantic solutions that help access information of interest through Natural Language Processing (NLP) techniques and RDF/RDFS/OWL ontological standards. He has always been engaged in problem solving themes and development of highly innovative solutions.